TROOPS ON GUARD.

Two Killed and Twenty-two Wounded—Police Station Crowded—Feeling of Uneasiness and Dread Exists at Danville, Ill.

Danville, Ill., July 27.—This city is comparatively quiet today under a guard of four companies of the Seventh regiment of Chicago. Bayonets are fixed and ready for instant use and the disorderly element is awed into submission, confining itself to threats of another race riot. All citizens been urged to remain off the streets. Talk of a special grand jury is being heard on all sides but no action has been taken as yet toward that end. Judge Thompson is expected to make some move in that direction today or tomorrow. Much feeling exists against the soldiers and officers found difficulty in getting food for the militia today.

Danville, Ill., July 27.—Two killed and twenty-four wounded, the police station crowded and the county jail with few of its windows left unshattered, the city in the hands of the state troops and a feeling of uneasiness and dread prevailing everywhere, is the situation left by the race riots of Saturday night and Sunday. The list of dead and injured follows:

The dead: John D. Metcalf, negro, lynched and burned.

Henry Gatterman, killed by the negro, Metcalf.

The injured: John Devore, thigh mangled by load of buckshot; Adam Murray, shot in forehead, will recover.

MAKES GOLD FROM SILVER

Inventor Claims to Produce Precious Metal From Baser Material by An Electrical Process.

Philadelphia, July 27.—"Alchemy exists." Gold has been made from the baser metals. The atom of science has been divided into its component parts, and the ions reassemble in new combinations.

The authority for these assertions is Rudolf Melville Hunter, of West Philadelphia, electrical expert and inventor. Mr. Hunter asserts that he has transmuted silver into gold, 24 carats fine. He showed to the reporter to night a quantity of gold in the forms of grains, flake and pellets, that, he said, had been made from silver dollars. He said that he is now busily engaged in making gold in a secret workshop within the limits of Philadelphia.

Associated with him in the transmutation of silver into gold are his sons and one outside assistant. A few wealthy Philadelphians are associated in a financial way, but only for a small amount.

As described by Mr. Hunter, silver in the process of its transmutation into gold, is treated in electrical, chemical and mechanical process. The experimentation of Mr. Hunter has extended over a period of eight years. For many years he held to the theory that all matter is constituted of the same units combined in varying numbers and under varying velocities. He set to work in 1895 to find the absolute unit of matter, for the purpose of creating gold.

The discovery came about 18 months ago. According to Mr. Hunter, he one day reduced a silver dollar to its component ions, stifled their vibrations, and by a succession of chemical, electrical and mechanical treatments, reassembled them into a new combination with a different synchronous vibration. The resultant metal was yellow, was affected only by aqua regia, in fact was gold, with all of gold's relations and values.

The place in which this was accomplished, and in which the further productions of gold have been made, said Mr. Hunter, is an inviolable secret, which is shared only by his two sons and two workmen. It is somewhere within the city's limits. Just where it is should not be difficult of discovery, as according to Mr. Hunter the noise made in the mechanical part of the treatment is so great as to be almost deafening.

GRAVE

Is the Situation at Panama

Soldiers Search House of Governor

WHO TOOK REFUGE IN HOME OF AN AMERICAN

SEVERAL ARRESTS ARE MADE

Trouble Started Saturday Night When
Editor of Liberal Organ Was Destroyed by Officers.

Washington, July 27.—The State department today received the following dispatch from Consul General Gudgeon at Panama, regarding the trouble in that city:

"Panama, July 26.—Last night about ten soldiers headed by the commander-in-chief, searched the governor's house. The governor escaped. He tried to reach the consulate, but was intercepted and took refuge at the house of an American. The streets were lined with soldiers. They arrested secretary of state, chief of police and department employees. Department has money and trouble arose because of the refusal of the governor to pay the national troops. The troops were withdrawn at 2 o'clock this morning. The governor remains hidden. It is quiet at the present moment. (Signed) Gudgeon."

A later dispatch from Consul Gudgeon today says that the situation at Panama is grave.

Panama, Colombia, July 27.—Not since the days of the last revolution, when an attack upon the city by the Liberals was feared has there been such a panic in Panama as occurred Saturday night. The office of El Lapiz, the organ of the Liberal party on the isthmus, was visited by the officers of the general staff of the army, who destroyed Saturday's edition of the newspaper. One of the directors was slightly wounded, but managed to escape.

The next event came like a bombshell. A company of soldiers, apparently under the orders of General Cobos, commander of the national forces, surrounded the residence of Governor Mutis.

The Governor and his wife, who is an American, having seen warned a few minutes before the arrival of the troops, succeeded in escaping. General Huertas, Commander of the Battalion of Colombia, when he learned of the El Lapiz incident, hurried to headquarters, where he found General Cobos. According to current reports the latter ordered General Huertas to remain in quarters. Exactly what has taken place is unknown, but it is said that Dr. Aristides Arango, Secretary of the Government; Fernando Arango, Chief of Police and Elrat Navia, a member of the Departmental Superior Tribunal of Justice, are under arrest the last named for trying to argue with General Cobos the illegality of his action.

An attempt also is said to have been made to arrest Senor Guerra, Secretary of Finance, but he refused to accompany the officer who went to his home to arrest him, and when the officer returned with soldiers to effect his capture, Guerra had departed.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., July 27.—The police are still at a loss regarding the identity of the young woman who was strangled with a shoestring and whose body was found hanging in a sewer pipe yesterday. She weighed about 147 pounds, was five feet, seven inches high and had dark blue eyes.

ASSASSIN

Again Lurks in Ambush—Attempt
Made to Kill Riley Coldiron at Jackson Witness.

Jackson, Ky., July 27.—There is much excitement here over an attempt to assassinate Riley Coldiron.

Coldiron was with James Gear, when two shots from ambush were heard one of the bullets passing through Coldiron's clothing.

Coldiron testified before the grand jury that he saw Britton and Spicer with Curtis Jett at the time Jett is charged with killing Cockrill and when Britton and Spicer were not indicted certain county officials attempted to have Coldiron indicted for perjury.

The friends of Coldiron wanted him to leave the county after he had testified, but he insisted on visiting his sister, who lives near one of the men against whom he testified.

It is stated that B. J. Ewen and Ritty Coldiron are the only ones who have dared to testify as to what they knew and that Ewen gets out of Breathitt county as soon as he testifies.

Riley Coldiron left for the trial of Jett and White at Cynthiana and his friends will try to prevent his return here for the present.

THREE LADS

Charged With Hazing Schoolmate to Death Are Under Arrest in Vermont.

Burlington, Vt., July 27.—Three young lads, Elba Ray, aged 11, Raymond Adams, 14 and Raymond Waterman, aged 9, are held at Barton charged with hazing to death a schoolmate, Ralph Canning, 9 years old. The deed was done in emulation of the acts of college students.

The three boys took their victim into the woods, where they put him through stunts. They wound up by building a fire in which they heated stones red hot. It is said that they compelled the Canning boy to stand and sit on the hot stones. After that they are said to have walked on his body. Soon after reaching home he was taken sick and died.

The potato is a native of Chili and Peru. They were originally carried to England from Santa Fe, in America, by Sir John Hawkins, in or about the year 1563.

CARDINAL GIBBONS

Looked Upon as the Natural Leader of Modern and Foreign Elements Against Italian and Ultra-Conservatives—Pre-Conclave Politics.

Rome, July 27.—The arrival of Cardinal Gibbons in Rome brought pre-conclave politics to a new pitch of intensity. All day yesterday the cardinals received a constant stream of visitors which continued until late at night. The heavy vatican carriages bearing the other cardinals and prelates uncasingly traversed the streets until 3 o'clock this morning. To all visitors not in clerical circles Cardinal Gibbons, while friendly, was non-committal. From others it is learned that he is looked upon as the natural leader of the modern and foreign elements against the Italians and ultra-conservatives.

The fact that he is not himself a candidate for the white hat, has given strength to this position. The chief reform movement in which Gibbons' friends wish him to take the lead is the modernization of the Vatican. While no Catholic desires any change in the religious conduct of the church, the purely business side of the Vatican administration has become greatly antiquated, many ceremonies connected with the death of the Pope losing much of their impressiveness from their management. Other business affairs of the church are often bungled through the Vatican bureaucrats.

It is recognized that the only way to secure these reforms is by the elevation of some cardinal to the papal throne who is in sympathy with them. While it is still improbable it is now recognized as a possibility that if the support of a few Italian cardinals can be secured that Gibbons himself may be asked to forego his objections and become a candidate for the position.

The feeling here is growing that the new century demands new departures and the result of the conclave may upset all predictions which are based on the theory of the continuance of old conditions.

FORTY GIRLS BURNED TO DEATH.

Berlin, July 27.—The report of a terrible crime comes from the Russian village Salajewskaja.

A gang of 80 laborers who had been working in the harvest fields met about 40 young peasant girls returning from a picnic and attacked them.

Most of the girls escaped to a large barn, where they barricaded the doors against their aggressors, who, finding that they could not gain an entrance, set fire to the place, and all the girls were burned alive. Only their charred bodies have been found.

It is said that the authorities might easily have saved the girls, but no efforts were made because it was thought wiser to let the men have their way and punish them afterward, as has always been the custom in Russia.

WHOLE FAMILY KILLED IN WRECK WHICH NUMBERS 32 VICTIMS.

Glasgow, July 27.—A fatal wreck occurred at St. Enoch station this morning in which 13 people were killed and 20 were seriously injured. An excursion train filled with returning visitors to the Isle of Man ran into the buffers at St. Enoch while going at a high rate of speed. The engine and two carriages were completely wrecked and those killed and injured were pinned down under the twisted iron rails and splintered wood. One whole family was among the killed.

The engineer says the accident was the result of the brakes failing to act. The dead now number 14. Several of the injured had their limbs amputated and cannot live.

WOMAN LYNCHED

Who Was Accused of Poisoning a Young Girl—She Denied Her Guilt.

Shreveport, La., July 27.—News has been placed a rope around her neck, reached Shreveport that Jennie Steer, colored, who gave poison in a glass of lemonade to beautiful 15-year-old Elizabeth Dolan, causing a frightful death, was lynched by an infuriated mob about midnight Saturday night.

The lynching occurred on the Board of plantation near the spot where the woman's crime was committed. She had an enemy in the world. She died in horrible agony, a fact which actually denying her crime, but the proof against her was direct and conclusive, and precluded the possibility of her innocence.

It is claimed that the negress fled from the Dolan household as soon as she discovered that her crime was horrible death startled the people of the neighborhood. She was pursued by a posse, this section several months ago. She was taken to the Dolan home, and fully identified as the woman who had placed the poison in the lemonade. The mob then took her to a nearby

GIANT HORSE

OWNED BY HOLMES COUNTY MAN HAS HORNS.

Shoe on Animal's Foot Measures Ten Inches Across at the Widest Point.

A wonderful specimen of the horse kind is owned by L. D. Snyder, the horse dealer at Millersburg. He bought the horse in Marion county some time ago and it was ordinary size then, but its growth since has been something wonderful. The animal is four years old, stands nineteen hands high and is ordinary flesh and yet weighs 2,500 pounds and still growing. Horsemen say that he will easily reach 3,000 pounds. The shoe on his foot measures ten inches across at the widest point.

Another strange thing about this animal is that he has two horns, an inch or more long protruding from the head, one near each ear. This enormous animal may be shown at the world's fair at St. Louis next year.

Surgical attendance was secured immediately and the injured member dressed.

Thieves were abroad on Saturday evening in the western part of town. They attempted to force an entrance to Fred Eggleston's barn, but were frightened away by a lady in an adjoining house. The whole neighborhood was aroused and the thief would have been roughly handled had he been caught.

W. L. Morgan, living about two miles east of town, met with a very peculiar accident. He was assisting in unloading hay when his left hand was caught by the rope controlling the fork, and the rope in passing through his hand burned the flesh from a part of it.

William Thomas of Newark, who has been visiting relatives just west of the village for the past week, was the victim of a painful accident. He was riding his wheel to Newark when he was struck by a passing vehicle and thrown off. He received a bad cut on the head, but otherwise escaped serious injury.

PERRY HEATH CAN GO FREE BY FRIDAY.

Statute of Limitation in His Case Will Then Apply—Move to Allow the Lapse Because His Prosecution Would Injure the Republicans.

Washington, July 27.—Perry S. Heath has just three days more during which to fear prosecution for irregularities he is alleged to have committed while first assistant postmaster general. He drew his last salary July 31, 1900. The statute of limitation becomes operative at the expiration of three years.

A high authority declares that Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow was called to Oyster Bay and instructed by the President not to institute any legal proceedings against Heath because of his present association with the Republican National committee as secretary. The President's action is said to have been based on the earnest pleadings of Senator Hanna, Postmaster General Payne and others, who have recently visited Oyster Bay and who represented to the President the great injury the party would suffer through one of its high officials brought into disrepute.

THE RISE OF COREY.

HOW THE NEW HEAD OF THE STEEL TRUST WON HIS WAY.

Began at the Ladder's Lowest Round—His Success the Result of Study and Hard Work—Career Similar to That of C. M. Schwab.

With the recent retirement of C. M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, from the active duties of his position and the appointment of W. E. Corey as his assistant, with full powers, another of that group of young men who helped Andrew Carnegie build up the great steel works which bear his name became a commanding figure in the steel trade of the world.

The new executive head of the steel corporation, however, does not succeed to the title of president of the world's greatest trust, but will perform all the active duties of the position. Mr. Schwab still retaining the nominal head of the combination and acting in an advisory capacity. A year or so ago Mr. Schwab announced that it was his intention to find some relief from the responsibilities imposed upon him and is said to be the author of the plan of having an assistant who could take over most of the work of his office. Mr. Corey is his close friend—the pair have worked together for many years—and he was the man selected as best qualified by ability and training to fill the position. Associates of Mr. Corey regard him as the equal if not the superior of Mr. Schwab as a practical operating executive, and they predict success in every particular for his administration of the affairs of the steel corporation.

William Ellis Corey began the wonderful career which at the age of thirty-seven has placed him in the front rank of the world's captains of industry in the laboratory of the Edgar Thomson Steel works of the Carnegie Steel company. He is a native of Bradock, the son of a retired coal operator, and until he went to work at the age of sixteen attended the public schools. After going to work he attended Duff's college in the evening. He also studied chemistry at home and mastered the theory and practice of metallurgy. He was a hard worker, careful and studious, and his superiors soon advanced him to a more responsible position in the plate mills of the Homestead Steel works and subsequently to the order department of the plant.

Applying himself with all the energy at his command to each new duty assigned him, Mr. Corey, while still little more than a youth, held positions of great responsibility and trust, with an army of thousands of workmen under his control. That he succeeded in every position is a tribute to the wonderful power of organization and grasp of detail with which he is endowed.

At the age of twenty-two he was made superintendent of the plate mill of the Homestead Steel works. His next advance was to the position of superintendent of the armor plate plant, which he filled until 1900, when he succeeded C. M. Schwab as general superintendent of the Homestead Steel works, the latter becoming the president of the Carnegie Steel company. Notwithstanding that his predecessor was accounted one of the most remarkable men of his time, Mr. Corey did not suffer by comparison, and under his management the business of the Homestead Steel works grew greater year by year. While at Homestead Mr. Corey invented an improved process of manufacturing armor, which is known to ordnance engineers as the "Corey reforcing process," by which the ballistic resistance of armor was greatly increased and the weight of plate carried by a ship considerably reduced.

Mr. Corey was the choice of Mr. Schwab as president of the Carnegie Steel company on April 10, 1901, when the latter was made president of the United States Steel corporation. His administration has been remarkably successful. During his term the National Steel Hoop companies were added to the Carnegie company, and since those two companies were taken in the scope of the concern has been much greater. Mr. Corey has held the confidence of the men with whom he worked, and his elevation to the higher office is looked upon as an honor wisely bestowed.

The careers of both Mr. Schwab and Mr. Corey have been almost identical. Both began at the lowest round of the ladder and by hard work with hand and head, neglecting no opportunity to add to their knowledge and usefulness, soon attracted the attention of Mr. Carnegie, who, like them, also began with his hands and an ambition to succeed as his only capital.

Uncle Abram's Celebration.

During the war of 1812 the infant city of Cleveland was made, in the year 1813, a depot for military supplies and a garrison of troops was stationed there. The barracks, or post, was a stockaded structure, which was located on the bank of Lake Erie at the foot of what is now known as Ontario street. This was the scene, or very near to it, of an incident at the close of the war which was both serious and ludicrous. When the news of peace reached the town much whisky was issued and there was a tremendous roaring of cannon. Among those engaged in attending to both liquor and artillery was an individual known as Uncle Abram. His duty was to carry the powder for the cannon, which he carried in a big tin pail on his arm. Near by was the man who carried the torch for firing the gun. Everything passed off splendidly till after a while a spark from the torch fell into the powder. There was an instant and great explosion, and the unfortunate Uncle Abram was seen by the horrified onlookers to rise a score of feet into the air and fall back to the earth bruised and blackened and with his clothing burned off. If those near at hand had believed the loudly protesting Abram, they would have considered him dead, for he vociferously cried out, many times over, that he was no more. But his friends straightened him up, and it was not long till his burns and bruises had healed. For many years this tale was a household story in Northern Ohio.

THE NEW WOMAN IDEAL

Fads and Fables of the Fair Sex

THE other day, a newspaper reported the proceedings of a woman's club and prefaced the account with the observation that the Selectas prided themselves on being the "most fashionably gownned club of women in the country." What a mark of superiority, now, to pride oneself on! To wear the longest, consequently the uncleanest, dress skirts, with the tightest waists, and those most heavily and uncomfortably loaded with embroidery, fringe, lace inset work and outset work, ribbons, velvets, buttons big as small saucers and in no case made to button, awful looking peg beeled Oxford ties with bows so big they give the appearance of bits of rag around the neck, with the sky scrapiest hats and the mean baggiest sleeves in the United States. Isn't that an item for women supposed to have brains and immortal souls to pride themselves on? If a majority of women's organizations throughout my country have come to this then I say better it were the woman's club had never been invented. In those glorious Greek statues which have stood for twenty centuries as the model of all that is most beautiful in the female figure is it the clothes of the marble women that we admire most? Will American women ever, ever learn that dress is only an adjunct to beauty and not at all beauty itself? The true aesthetic principle in dress is that it shall be secondary to the body which it covers. When a woman is dressed in such a way that her costume attracts more attention than she herself does it is an all round admission on her part that she is nothing in herself, therefore must resort to costly or bizarre garments to draw notice at all. That is the impression conveyed by the Selecta club. They have no intellectual power, so must dress to get any notice taken of them. In this matter of beauty it is the body itself we should spend time on, to make it come by physical culture, and not the garments that robe it. Add to this accomplishments of intellect and soul and you will have my Lady Beautiful.

Because a thing is so in your neighborhood is no reason why necessarily it ought to be so all over this universe. Don't be provincial.

Golf made John D. Rockefeller over into a new man physically, he says. It is just as good for women as for men.

In a Boston school committee report on coeducation I find this: "The only advantage in having the sexes separated may be to give inferior teachers easy positions in girls' schools. It is a fact that certain masters of mixed schools have separated boys from girls in order to aid inferior teachers."

Do you think girls and women ought to be supported in idleness by men? Read what Ella Wheeler Wilcox says: "I grow to believe there is a curse upon money we have not earned."

Very bad news from Roumanian. There is likely to be a famine in the land. Roumanian women have struck. They refuse to do the nation's farm work any more. Thousands of acres lie uncultivated, growing up in weeds, the dispatches say. How sad this! Our hearts bleed for the hunger and want of the poor Roumanian men. It is said, though, that a few of them are coming up bravely to the scratch and are preparing to till what they must of the soil themselves. And the first result of this is a large order to the United States for agricultural machinery. Just so. No hand labor for his majesty Man if he can get out of it. Well, one doesn't blame him for that.

Mrs. Snapback was a smart widow with a grown son. The son was six feet tall and broad and strong in proportion. She herself was of good size and in good health. She married a poor, meek, weak little husband, not much more than half the size of her son and not so strong as herself. The poor little husband was expected to support Mrs. Snapback in comparative luxury. For some reason he failed to fill her ideal of a man, so she left him and sued him for alimony, which she obtained. He paid it awhile, then fell ill. Mrs. Snapback sued him for back pay and demanded also that the regular amount, $7 a week, be increased. She appeared in court beautifully gownned and wearing diamonds. She cast her gorgeous eyes over the pale, little ex-husband, then over the court room, and sniffed. "Oh, my, what a smelly place this is!" she exclaimed. The judge looked at her, abashed enough to take in washing for a living if he needed to, then at the brawny, big son, his eagle eye finally hovering over the pale, meek ex-husband. "Little husband," said the judge, "you may reduce your wife's alimony to $1 a week if you want to."

A man who is opposed to the emancipation of women shows that there was something seriously wrong or lacking in his wife and female relatives. His stand on the woman question is a reflection on them.

A man who is liberal on the woman question should be made much of. He is worth ten women in conquering prejudice among his own sex. Besides that, he has a vote.

Stand by your own sex through thick and thin as men stand by theirs.

The Pittsburg Post thinks it may be worth the while to place on record the opinion of that eminent Republican newspaper, the Chicago "Inter Ocean," touching the mention by Senator Tom Platt of Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, for the vice presidency. It regards him as an utter impossibility, because he represents even more than Mark Hanna "that political philosophy which regards governments as instituted chiefly to enable men to grow rich. By lifelong association and by family connection Senator Aldrich stands for the forces and influences in our national life which the American people have lately found it necessary to remind that riches do not elevate a citizen above the law." But if Mr. Platt's choice is not to be named for second place, is he to be accepted as just the man to formulate a bill to provide an elastic currency by permitting banks to issue notes or to secure deposits on most any old kind of assets? Will not the American people have to remind him again that they want only first-class collateral that is collectible on sight, and involves no appointments of receivers or necessity of expelling water from the capital stock.

Those who compare the acquisition of the Philippines to the acquisition of the Louisiana territory would be the first to object to giving the same assurance and laws to the Filipinos that were given to the people of the territory acquired by Jefferson's wise policy.

INDIANA'S LYNCHING TROUBLES.

(Pittsburg Post)

No wider field for operation for the crank exists than that of formulating legislation. Congressman Landis, of Indiana, is now to the front with a proposition to oust every sheriff from office who permits a lynching, and to fine the county in behalf of the man hanged a sum between $15,000 and $20,000. Some sanity resides in removing any sheriff who permits a lynching, but the second branch of the proposal belongs to the crank series. The annals of lynching are not recalled as showing a solitary instance where the victim and all his relations were worth $15,000 or where, if they were overwhelmed by such sudden legacy, they would not so conduct themselves as to incite a train of lynchings, all closely related. When the British government offered a reward for cobra killed in India the natives started cobra farms, and in this country few states have not encountered costly experience by offering a reward for wolf heads or groundhog scalps. Punishing a few lynchings would be a more effective preventive.

ESSAY

ON TRUTH BY 'SQUIRE MILTON R.

SCOTT

Book is Now in Press and Will be Out in a Few Days—A Review of Book.

Mr. M. R. Scott, the noted author and sociologist, has written an essay on Truth, the advance sheets of which are before us, the essay being now in press and will be ready for the public in book form in a few days.

Mr. Scott's essay is exhaustive but never tiresome, and may be read with great profit in a couple of hours. It covers something over 100 pages and is to be attractively printed and bound.

The work is one on an abstract subject, but the treatment in this essay is delightfully free from tedious metaphysical discussions and finely drawn distinctions. He starts out with several propositions and during the progress through the essay, these propositions are amplified, defended and, we think, generally successfully maintained. The most abstract phases of the subject are given a lively interest, and ready perspicuity by the author's intimate acquaintance with the proper application of rhetorical simile. He draws them from the experience of everyday life, the processes of nature and those results of natural laws with which all are familiar.

As an illustration of this manner of dealing with this subject, at which Mr. Scott is an adept we cite the following. He makes the statement that perhaps the human mind is incapable of receiving pure truth, and that certain error must be also present so that the faculties, used in perceiving truth, may be given proper exercise and development. The author does not go further than the human eye, or the natural process of digestion to prove his proposition by analogy.

The eye is not so constructed as to receive the direct rays of the sun, but they must be reflected so that we may be able to see. The human stomach does not, nor can it receive pure nutrition, but food is taken in bulk, and the proper functions of the digestive apparatus is to separate the nutriment from that which is not, and by proper appropriation and assimilation the body receives nourishment and strength.

Thus it is with truth, or knowledge. That which is gained by the highest exercise of our faculties, is the most highly prized.

It is this manner of treating his subject that gives Mr. Scott's essay charm and interest, probably more than anything else.

The style of the work is different from that usually employed by this author. It is simple, yet virile; philosophical yet clear and easily understood. The essay should meet with a ready sale and should have a wide circle of readers. The chapter headings of the work are:

Chapters 1, 2, 3, "Limitations of Our Knowledge With Respect to All Sciences—and Religion."

Chapter 4, "We Can Not Live by Facts Alone."

Chapter 7, "The High Art of Teaching."

Chapter 8, "Concerning Medical Practice, With Some Remarks on Christian Science and Other Systems."

Chapter 13, "The Mysteries of Religion."

Chapter 16, "Is Catholicism Evolving as Well as Protestantism?"

Chapter 19, "The Doctrine of the Trinity."

Chapter 20, "The Doctrine of the Atonement."

Chapter 21, "Other Christian Doctrines."

Chapter 23, "The Forms of Religion."

Chapter 24, "How Far May the Christian Minister or Teacher Evolve?"

Chapter 25, "Truth has an Abiding Foundation—Its Own Revolvency Upholds the Earth."

A LAWN PARTY.

One of the most delightful social events of the week was the lawn party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kent on "Lover's Lane," in honor of the twenty-first birthday of their son, Maurice Coulter Kent. The guests began to arrive at four and at twilight, a dainty lunch was served on the lawn. Then the yard was lighted with Japanese lanterns and many merry games were indulged in by old and young alike until a late hour, when all departed wishing the young man many happy returns of the day. Mr. Kent received many very handsome presents in honor of the occasion. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Amos Grove, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kent, Mrs. Coulter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Felix, Misses Lettie Felix, Eva Shaw, Diggins, Mary Nichols, Eva Montgomery, Diggins, Glynn Stadden, Gertrude Fulton, Laurel Young, Elma Grove, Florence Grove, Lorena and Olive Kent, Messrs. Bert Shaw, Albert Zartman, Frank Stadden, John Felix, Stevens, Thomas Stevens, Bernie Kent, Maurice Kent and Mr. O. B. Young.

TICKLED THE SIAMESE.

How John Barrett Won His First Diplomatic Success.

John Barrett, who has just been appointed United States minister to the Argentine Republic, for the past year and a half has been commissioner general for the Louisiana Purchase exposition in Asia and Australia, during which time he has traveled 45,000 miles and interviewed fifteen kings and emperors.

Mr. Barrett is a native of Vermont, but for many years has been a resident of Oregon. He is a graduate of Dartmouth college and when only twenty-seven years old was appointed minister to Siam by President Cleveland. The first important task that confronted the youthful envoy was to present a claim for $250,000 against the government of Siam. He was warned by experienced diplomats against using threats in pressing the claim. "Be cunning, avoid arrogance," they urged.

"That is," responded Mr. Barrett, "you favor tickling with a straw to pricking with a bayonet."

The statesmen nodded assent.

When the young minister had finally succeeded in collecting the claim the diplomats asked in astonishment, "How did you accomplish it?"

"By tickling," explained Barrett. "I had to tickle them almost to death, though, before they agreed to pay."

Subsequently he traveled extensively in Japan, China, India and the Philippines, investigating opportunities for American trade. In 1898 he relinquished his post as minister to Siam, but remained in the east as correspondent for various newspapers.

In 1901 he was appointed delegate of the United States to the international conference of the American republics at Mexico and since 1902 has been traveling in the far east for the St. Louis exposition. Last December he was appointed United States minister to Japan, but he declined.

While minister to Siam Mr. Barrett obtained the first clear interpretation of the scope of foreign extraterritorial jurisdiction in Asia and was the pioneer advocate of the development of America's commercial opportunities in the far east. The salary of the minister to Argentina is $10,000.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANITY.

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief obtained. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mr. B. Bollwine of the Travelers Hotel, Corner Second and Canal Sts., Newark, Ohio, says:

"Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are what they claim to be, a good nerve tonic. I was induced to use them as a cure for nervousness, restlessness, nervous sick headaches and depression. The box I got at Bricker's City Drug Store worked well in each instance and cured the trouble. I feel well and right again and can recommend them highly as thoroughly reliable." 50 cents a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of Dr. A. ## WHISTLER WITTICISMS.

Every one who knew the late James MacNeill Whistler, the American artist, bore witness to his brilliant if sarcastic wit, says the Philadelphia Press. An admirer once said to him fulsomely, "Mr. Whistler, there are only two great painters—youself and Velasquez."

"No," drawled the gentle artist, "why drag in Velasquez?" He was never disconcerted by any compliment. A lady spoke to him in enthusiastic terms of the scenery along the Thames. "The whole journey," she bubbled, "was like a series of your superb etchings."

"Yes," vouchsafed Mr. Whistler. "Nature is creeping up." A young English impressionist once invited him to look at some of his work. Of one particularly bad specimen the youthful artist remarked:

"Oh, it is only a pot boiler, intended to keep the wolf from the door."

"Ah, I see!" retorted Whistler. "I suppose you hang it outside the door?"

The story of the "peacock room" is famous.

Fretted by a man whose room he was decorating, he finished the decoration by painting two peacocks, one with a long lock over its brow to represent himself pecking at the other peacock.

While Whistler was at West Point there was, in addition to regular cadet mess, a private mess for twelve, of whom Whistler was one, at the house of an army officer's widow, says Chap Book. One day the cadets conceived the idea of having a little sport at the landlady's expense. The first cadet who came to the table said as he sat down:

"Good morning, Mrs. —. There is a cat on the roof of your house."

The second cadet repeated the remark, except that he varied it by saying, "There are two cats on the roof of your house."

Each cadet added a cat, until, when Whistler, who was the last to arrive, sat down, he said gravely and with much concern: "Good morning, Mrs. —. There are twelve cats on the roof of your house."

During the next meal Whistler found under his napkin a billet notifying him that his presence at the mess was no longer required. Being, however, averse to returning to the general mess, Whistler hit upon a plan to regain the widow's good will. After dinner he planted himself in front of a portrait of her late lamented which hung in the parlor and appeared lost in admiration of it. When he heard the widow entering he began decanting, as if to himself, yet loud enough for her to hear, upon the virtues of the deceased, winding up with this exclamation:

"To think that West Point should produce such a man and that we have his portrait here to remind us of what we ourselves may attain to!" This touched the widow so deeply that Whistler was re-established in her good graces—and the mess.

"He did, did he?" said Whistler. "The confounded teetotaler!"

Whistler was at work one day in his studio surrounded by a group of admiring students, says the New York American. Mixing, studying and laboring, he turned to the students suddenly and remarked:

"I suppose you know what I am trying to do?"

"Oh, yes," they rejoined.

"Well, it's more than I know myself," he replied.

Once when forming a class he inquired of each pupil with whom he had studied before.

"With Julien," said one.

"Couldn't have done better," Whistler replied.

"With Chase," said another.

"Couldn't have done better," commented Whistler.

"With Mowbray," said a third.

"Couldn't have done better."

He approached a student who was slightly deaf and asked the question.

"Beg pardon," stammered the student.

"Couldn't have done better," responded Whistler, passing on to the next student.

LAST WORDS OF LEO XIII.

"I Bless," Said the Pope as He Sank to Death.

Dr. Laponi, so long the pope's physician, talked with the Rome correspondent of the New York World the other night on the last moments of Leo. He said that just before he died the pope blessed the Italian people, saying: "I have always loved my country," while the tears streamed down his face.

The doctor said that in all of his professional career he had never met with a deathbed scene comparable with that of the pope. Leo's stoical resistance against the agony of his last moments was most edifying and impressive.

When he had given to Cardinal Oreglia his last instructions concerning the conclave he became unconscious. His last words were:

NEW DEADLY FORCE.

French Scientist Finds It While Experimenting With Hertzian Rays.

Dr. Le Bon, a well known scientific investigator of Paris, has just made a discovery that may possibly lead to a terrible death dealing invention, says the New York World. While experimenting with the Hertzian rays in his laboratory he was suddenly surrounded by what he describes as a rain of fire from all the metallic objects in the room.

He concluded from this that it would be possible to construct large metal mirrors capable of reflecting for several miles the Hertzian rays which, while remaining invisible, would ignite any explosive substance encountered, such as shells and gunpowder in magazines and cartridges in soldiers' belts.

War ships would be particularly vulnerable owing to their extensive use of electricity, while torpedoes on board of them would be exploded by an enemy whom they were designed to destroy.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED

Shocking Disaster at Pine Street Crossing Sunday Afternoon—Marion Robb's Little Daughter Victim of Fatal Accident in Sight of Her Home.

A frightful accident occurred at about 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon which cast a gloom of sorrow over the entire West Newark community. The victim of the accident was little Eva Robb, the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Robb, of 196 Pine street, and the terrible fatality occurred at the Pine street railroad crossing, in sight of the little one's home.

With four companions Eva was returning from Sunday school at the Pine street Christian Union chapel, and stepped at the north side of the crossing to allow a west bound freight to pass. As soon as the caroose cleared the crossing the children started over, never noticing the approaching of East bound Panhandle passenger train No. 6 which was on the other side of the freight train, and running about 2 hours late.

All got over safely but the little Robb girl, who was struck by the engine and hurled as high as the telegraph wires, her body falling along the side of the track, 60 feet from where she was hit. Her head was terribly

DR. COOPER

IS ARRESTED FOR PRACTISING WITHOUT LICENSE

Brother of the Doctor Who Did a Big Business With His Medicine Show in Newark.

Dennison, O., July 27.—Dr. Cooper, who has been selling his medicines in West Uhrichsville for several weeks, was arrested by Marshall Roe, of Uhrichsville on a warrant sworn out by Frank Winders, of Columbus, secretary of the state board of medical examiners, charging that Dr. Cooper practices medicine without a license. The prisoner was released on his own recognizance. Dr. Cooper claims that he administers medicine only under the direction of Dr. E. C. Bell, a regularly licensed physician, who accompanies the show.

The above paragraph refers to Jesse Cooper, eldest of the four Cooper brothers, of Dayton, and brother of Lee T. Cooper, the "Dr." Cooper who sold Cooper's New Discovery in this city a year ago. Last fall the Cooper Medicine show was located on the lot where the Powers-Miller department store now stands.

Coroner C. F. Legge was notified and was soon on the scene where he viewed the remains, which were removed to Bowers & Bradley's morgue and prepared for burial.

A pitiful scene was being enacted in the stricken home, within a stone's throw of where the bruised and mangled body of little Eva lay awaiting the official view of the coroner. The mother was nearly frantic with grief and refused utterly to be comforted, by the tender words of her husband, and the tearful appeals of her three remaining children who huddled about her saying "Don't cry mamma."

The stoutest heart there was thrilled with compassionate grief at the mother's and father's terrible sorrow, yet no one could do anything to assuage the family's grief.

Chesaw, Wash., July 16.—Ore from a blind ledge in the lower workings at the Opal mine last night gives values as high as $500 in gold. The ore is four feet wide and is running in the same direction as the tunnel. The lower tunnel is now 200 feet, and has a vertical depth of 90 feet. One hundred feet ahead of the present face of this tunnel the surface work shows the existence of a large body of high grade ore. Two shifts are at work. Treas-

MOTHER IS DEAD.

Mrs. Dettrow Passed Away Two Years Ago—Daughter Hears the Sad News at Her Home in Vincennes, Indiana.

The Advocate several days ago printed a letter from Miss Daisy Dettrow of Vincennes, Ind., to Postmaster McKee, making inquiry about Miss Dettrow's mother, whom the girl had not seen for fourteen years. It now develops that Mrs. Dettrow, who has a daughter living in Newark has been dead for two years. The following from Vincennes, Ind. to the Advocate will be of interest in this connection: Vincennes, Ind., July 27—After several years spent in an endeavor to find her mother, whom she had not seen since childhood, Miss Daisy Dettrow of 123 South Thirteenth street, this city, has just received word from Newark, O., that her mother had been dead for two years. The young woman was nearly heartbroken when the sad news was received. The girl has been prosecuting the search for her parent for her parent for several years, but up to two weeks ago her efforts were vain. At that time she received information that her mother was in Newark, O.

Miss Dettrow immediately wrote to the postmaster at Newark, Ohio, telling him that her father was formerly employed in Ohio by the Singer Sewing Machine company. Her mother's maiden name was Martha Gray. The couple separated fourteen years ago, the father taking the two little girls with him. The father later married again.

The girl attempted to secure information from her father in regard to her mother, but he was as ignorant as she. The girl waited patiently for an answer to her letter to Newark, but it has just arrived. She is heartbroken by the sad news, as she had hoped to go to her mother and make her home with her.

RED HAT GIRL.

You're blazing her and winking there, You fill the street with lurid glare, And as you wander up and down You fairly seem to paint the town.

Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red hat!

When far away a red glow illumines the sky—'Tis for you go. They say that if you see me, You'd surely not sail ship, yet "You're not so warm!" They can't say that.

Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red hat!

You fairly seem to scorch the air; Into each horse's eye you throw a glare. Your flaming bonnet makes us thrill And gaze and gaze and glare until We hardly know where we are at.

Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red hat!

They tell a tale—'Tis true!—About that hat of fiery hue: It got too near a big machine—An auto run by gas line—And "Fur!" Boom! Bang!" Did you do that?

Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red hat!—Earle Hooker Eaton in New York Herald.

An Animal Story For Little Folks THE Fish That Was Unselfish

"What a wonderful piece of good fortune it was that that fisherman dropped his bait box overboard!" said Mr. Sunfish to Mr. Minnow. "Yes, indeed," replied Mr. Minnow. "I always did relish nice fresh bread crumbs and crusts, and I understand that this box was filled with both."

"And so it was," said Mr. Sunfish. "I have made all arrangements to have it carried over to my house."

"But it doesn't belong to you!" exclaimed Mr. Minnow, half angrily. "It is mine."

Mr. Sunfish bit his lips thoughtfully.

MR. SUNFISH AND MR. MINNOW. "Very well," he said finally, "you may have it. I shall not be selfish."

"I guess you are jealous of me now, aren't you?" inquired the minnow, with a broad smile.

"No, indeed," answered the sunfish cheerily.

"Simply because I have already got out of the box all the best that it contained."

Mr. Minnow's countenance fell, and he hurried off to inspect the box. Sure enough, the very best that had been in it was gone, and the sunfish had taken it.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kumer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

RADIUM AND ITS USES.

New Element Considered Superior to the X Rays.

EFFECTIVE IN CURING CANCER.

Fraction of a Grain Said to Have Been Used Successfully in Treatment of Disease Which Affected the Nose—May Cure the Blind—Has Powerful Lighting Property and Enormous Energy.

A writer in the London Times has an article dealing with the practical uses to which radium can and may be put. He laments the fact that there is no sign that the chemical industry in England has yet awakened to these possibilities. He says: "In Germany and France radium is successfully produced on a manufacturing scale. The demand at $75,000 an ounce is far in excess of the supply, whereas in England it is neither produced nor is its manufacture attempted."

"Physicists and doctors complain of the impossibility of regulating the character of X rays so as to repeat with certainty any desired effect. Radium gives a beautifully consistent and uniform supply of rays. Instead of the cumbersome focus tube, nearly as large as a football, and the manifold expensive items of the X ray outfit a glass tube, somewhat smaller than a toothpick and containing from one-tenth to one-fifth of a grain of radium, has already been successfully employed in cases of cancer, since the little tube can be inserted in cavities no larger than the nostril.

"In a great many cases in which it was impossible to use the X rays radium has been readily employed, as is shown by the following case at Charing Cross hospital. A rodent cancer of the nose which had recurred after an operation and had been unsuccessfully treated by the X rays was subjected to a short exposure of radium. Four exposures, aggregating about an hour, were given at intervals of a few days. In three weeks the diseased part was healing well, and in six weeks, after two further exposures, the cancer disappeared completely without leaving any visible scar. Similar success in treating an otherwise incurable cancer was reported from Vienna.

"The fact that radium enclosed in a lead box as a high light brought near a person in a dark room causes the same feeling as a flash of light on the retina, even when the eyelids are tightly closed, and that the same sensation is experienced by the blind is attracting the serious attention of medical men, and the successful treatment of many other diseases than cancer may be confidently expected in the near future.

"The great problem of the application of radium for illuminating purposes belongs to another class—that is, it would be perfectly practicable if the supply of radium were somewhat more abundant than at present. A small fraction of an ounce of radium properly employed would probably prove to be a good light sufficient for several rooms, which at any rate during the present century need never require renewal.

"Other conceivable applications of radium to supply other forms of energy besides light belong to still another class, so far as can be seen at present, and will only become applicable if the available supply of radium is increased beyond what seems just now possible, for it cannot be expected that such a very radioactive element will ever become very abundant. It is not to be expected that a much more abundant source than pitchblende, which probably does not contain more than 110,000 per cent of radium, will be found.

"The most striking fact of radio activity is its unalterability. Radium contains an immense reservoir of energy, sufficient to maintain its continuous powerful radiations for many centuries, but all attempts to increase its activity or make it supply its energy at a faster rate have signally failed. If it is ever possible to accomplish this and to concentrate the output of energy which is now being dissipated over several centuries into the space of a few days or weeks, then there is not the least doubt that an ounce would suffice to drive a fifty horse power motor around the world at the rate of thirty miles an hour.

"The possibility of being able in the future to control and store the energy of radium and to liberate it for use as required at any desired rate is the most interesting feature of radio activity at the present time. If it were ever possible to do this with radium it would almost certainly be so for uranium and thorium, which can be produced by the ton and probably contain no less stored energy than radium, but evolve it at a vastly slower rate.

"Our fathers busied themselves in speculating as to what would become of us when the world's coal supply was exhausted. A single step of science is all that is needed for that problem to be answered in a manner beyond the dreams even of the scientific novelist, but it must be confessed that science holds out scanty prospects of its fulfillment."

Real Reform. "My husband doesn't gamble now as he used to."

"Reformed, has he?" "Yes, he doesn't go to the race track at all any more. His worst dissipation now is swimming. I think. At any rate, he says he only goes to the pool rooms."—Philadelphia Record.

Knew of One. "What is the favorite drink of tropical countries?" asked the caller in search of information.

"Can it be possible," said the answers to correspondents editor rather crossly—for it was a hot day—"that you have never heard of the negus of Abyssinia?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Dangerous Item. "I see that choice Bengal tigers have been marked down to $1,000 each."

"For goodness' sake, don't let my wife read that paragraph! Here's my knife; cut it out. If those tigers are on the bargain counter she'd want at least two."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Progressive Victory. Mrs. Pince-nez—I can congratulate myself that all my daughters have married well.

THE BIG NEWARK CAMP OF OHIO GUARD. AT ST. PETER'S

Two Thousand Tents Will Shelter 500 Officers and 5,900 Men at State Camp Ground for a Week Beginning August 17.

Two thousand tents, sheltering 500 officers and 5,900 men is a statement giving a fair idea of the magnitude of the division camp of the Ohio National Guard that will begin at the state camp grounds at Newark, August 17, and continue for eight days. The encampment will cost the state $75,000.

Arrangements for the camp were practically completed Saturday. There will be in camp at the same time every organization of the O. N. G. except the

THE RAILWAYS

ATTEMPT TO LYNCH DETECTIVE AT FOSTER, PA.

B. & O. a Four Track System—Local Personals and Items For and

Seranton, Pa., July 27.—An attempt to lynch John Peel, a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company detective was made at Foster, by a crowd of the villagers, who were infuriated upon learning that he had gained evidence which could connect a score of the families of the village with wholesale thievery of brass and other junk from the company's property.

Peel was attacked at a hotel while waiting for a train. When the mob made its attack with cries of "lynch him," the detective drew his revolver. Peel gained the waiting room while the mob was shrinking before his leveled revolver and locked himself in. Word was telegraphed to this city and a force of twenty-five officers was hastily recruited to be sent to the detective's rescue. In the meantime a passenger train arrived and the crowd, acting under telegraph orders from this city, quit the train, and, after a hard fight, succeeded in getting the detective on the train.

The ringleader of the mob is said to be one of the leading citizens of the town, and it is alleged that, because the detective had gained evidence in connection with the thieving which would disgrace him and his son forever, he gathered the mob and led them in the murderous attack.

Four-Track System.

Official statements show that the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will eventually be a four-track system between Chicago and New York. Plans have been prepared for this gigantic undertaking for the whole distance. It is likely that cut-offs will be so arranged that Cleveland will be placed on the main line. There is probably no road in the country that is undergoing such a radical change over the whole system as the Baltimore and Ohio.

Railway Trainmen.

AT ST. PETER'S

PEN PICTURE OF LATE PONTIFF AT MASS

Vivid Effect of His Presence—Remarkable Feature of the Pope's Chanting.

The following description of Leo XIII., the late pope, from "Eleanor," by Mrs. Humphrey Ward is published by permission of Harper & Bros.:

A roar came up the church—passionate, indescribable. Lucy held her breath.

There, there he is—the old man! Caught in a great shaft of sunlight striking from south to north across the church and just touching the chapel of the holy sacrament, the pope emerges. The white figure, high above the crowd, sways from side to side; the hand upraised gives the benediction. Fragile, spiritual as is the apparition, the sunbeam refines, subtilizes, spiritualizes, it still more. It hovers like a dream above the vast multitudes—surely no living man, but thought, history, faith, taking shape, the passion of many hearts revealed. Up rushes the roar toward the tribunes.

Lucy—the alien and Puritan Lucy—surrenders herself completely. She betrays nothing save by the slightly parted lips and the flutter of the black veil fastened on her breast, but it is as though her whole inner being were dissolving, melting away, in the flame of the moment.

In a proud timidity, as one who feels herself an alien and on sufferance, she hangs again upon the incomprehensible scene. This is St. Peter's. There is the dome of Michael Angelo, and here, advancing toward her amid the red of the cardinals, the clatter of the guards, the tossing of the flagella, as though looking at her alone—the two waxen fingers raised for her alone—is the white robed, triple crowned pope.

And August, unheeding, the great pageant swept on. Close, close to her now! Down sink the crowd upon the chairs. The heads fall like corn before the wind. Lucy is bending too. The papal chair, borne on the shoulders of the guards, is now but a few feet distant. Vaguely she wonders that the old man keeps his balance as he clings with one frail hand to the arm of the chair, rises incessantly and blesses with the other. She catches the very look and meaning of the eyes, the sharp, long line of the closed and toothless jaw. Spirit and specter—embodying the past, bearing the clew to the future.

The pope and his cortege disappeared behind the confession, behind the high altar, and presently Lucy, craning her neck to the right, could see dimly in the farthest distance against the apse and under the chair of St. Peter the chair of Leo XIII. and the white shroud, motionless, erect, within it amid a court of cardinals and diplomats.

One more "moment," however, there was—very different from the great moment of the entry, yet beautiful. The mass is over, and a temporary platform has been erected between the confession and the nave. The pope has been placed upon it and is about to chant the apostolic benediction.

The old man is within thirty feet of Maunty, who sits nearest to the barrier. The red cardinal holding the service book, the group of guards, clergy and high officials, every detail of the pope's gorgeous dress, any every line of the wrinkled face and fleshless hands, Lucy's eyes command them all. The quivering voice rises into the sudden silence of St. Peter's. Fifty thousand people hush every movement, strain their ears to listen.

Ah, how weak it is! Surely the effort is too great for a frame so enfeebled, so ancient. It should not have been exacted—allowed. Lucy's ears listen painfully for the inevitable break. But no! The pope draws a long sigh—the sigh of weakness—"Ah, poveretto!" says a woman close to Lucy in a transport of pity—then once more attempts the chant—sings again—and sings. Lucy's face softens and glows; her eyes fill with tears. Nothing more touching, more triumphant than this weakness and this perseverance. Fragile, indomitable face beneath the papal crown! Under the eyes of 50,000 people the pope sighs like a child because he is weak and old and the burden of his office is great, but in sighing keeps a perfect simplicity, dignity, courage. Not a trace of stoical concealment, but also not a trace of flinching. He sings to the end, and St. Peter's listens in a tender hush.

Then there seems to be a moment of collapse. The long, straight lips close as though with a snap, the upper jaw protruding; the eyelids drop; the emaciated form sinks upon itself. But his guards raise the chair, and the pope's trance passes away. He opens his eyes and braces himself for the last effort. Whiter than the gorgeous cope which falls about him, he raises himself, clinging to the chair; he lifts the skeleton fingers of his partly gloved hand; his look searches the crowd.

Aluminum can now be rolled into sheets so thin that 4,000 laid together measure only an inch in thickness. It is proposed to use these for writing paper where lasting records are desired.

In the printed records of Boston in the Public library the birth of Ralph Waldo "Emerson" is entered.

ECZEMA SETS THE SKIN ON FIRE

No disease causes so much bodily discomfort, or itches, and burns like Eczema. Beginning often with a slight redness of the skin it gradually spreads, followed by pustules or blisters from which a gummy, sticky fluid oozes which dries and scales off or forms bad looking sores and scabs. It appears on different parts of the body but oftenest upon the back, arms, hands, legs and face, and is a veritable torment at times, especially at night or when overheated.

The cause of Eczema is a too acid and general unhealthy condition of the blood. The torturing itching and burning is produced by the overflow through the glands and pores of the skin of the fiery poisons with which the blood-current is overloaded. While external applications, such as washes, soaps, salves and powders are soothing and cooling they do not enter into the blood itself or touch the real cause of the disease, but S. S. S. does, and purifies, enriches, and strengthens the thin acid blood and cleanses and builds up the general system, when the skin clears off and Eczema with all its terrifying symptoms disappears.

TWO GAMES

WERE WON BY LOCAL TEAM
FROM SHAWNEEFirst Home Run Knocked on Idlewild Ground This Season Was Scored
by Treadwell.

The Idlewild baseball team defeated Shawnee Saturday in a game that was devoid of interest except the terrific bating of the home team, the visitors being overwhelmed by a score of 21 to 2.

Pataskala Scotty was in the box for Idlewild and after the first couple of innings merely tossed the ball over depending on his support to field the side out. The game toward the last lost all interest as a contest and developed into a farce. Wilson Halsey played right field for the home team and made a hit every time he came to bat, retiring in the sixth in favor of Whalen. The score:

Idlewild . . . 4 5 4 3 0 4 0 1 *—21
Shawnee . . . 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0—2

Batteries—Scott and Mains; Jones and Opperman.

Sunday's Game.

The game Sunday afternoon was another easy victory for Idlewild, who won 12 to 4. Big Tom Thomas the ex-National League pitcher was batted out of the box in the first four innings. Treadwell then went in and did better. Treadwell also secured the first home run on the grounds the ball going under the fence in deep center. The score follows:

Idlewild . . . 0 0 5 3 0 0 4 0 *—12
Shawnee . . . 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 2 0—4

Hits, Idlewild 15, Shawnee 7; Errors Idlewild 2, Shawnee 5; Batteries, Idlewild, Snyder and Mains; Shawnee Thomas, Treadwell and Workman.

An Animal Story For Little Folks
HOW THE
Rabbit Trap Worked

When the rabbit family strolled through the field one day they came across a trap that had been set to catch them. Mamma Rabbit and little Charlie Rabbit didn't know what it was, but Papa Rabbit did, for he had lost a first cousin through one of the things when he was quite a young fellow.

"Don't go near it," he said to his family.

"What is it?" asked Charlie Rabbit, sniffing around the sides, for he could

HE PITCHED INTO JIMMY.

smell the bunch of fresh celery with which the trap was baited, and he was just dying to make a meal of it.

"It's a trap set to catch you by Jimmy Jones, the farmer's son. Jimmy's father likes rabbit meat, and Jimmy wants to please him, so he thought he would get us in his trap and give us to his father to eat. But instead of getting in we will wait out here until the farmer comes along and see what happens."

So they hid in the tall grass until they saw the farmer and his son coming across the field. Jimmy thought that by this time there must be something in his trap, so he said to his father:

"Pop, I've got something for you over there in the grass. Go over and get it."

"What is it?" asked his father.

"Never mind; you go over and see for yourself," said Jimmy, for he wanted to surprise his father. Mr. Jones walked along through the grass, but he didn't see the trap until the toe of his shoe struck it, and away he went heels over head on his nose on the ground. He scrambled to his feet, as mad as he could be, and reached out and grabbed Jimmy by the collar.

"So you hid an old box in the grass for me to stumble over and hurt myself, did you?" he cried angrily. "Well, I'll teach you a little lesson that you will never forget."

And with that he pitched into Jimmy and gave him such a lambasting that he will never forget as long as he lives to tell the tale.

And all the time the rabbit family sat over in the tall grass and snickered as they thought what a terrible fate they had escaped and how sorry little Jimmy must feel that he had ever tried to catch them to make a meal for his father.—Chicago Tribune.

A Novel Industry.

"Song spotting" is a new industry described by T. A. T. the new English penny magazine-journal. The "song spotter" is the accredited and responsible agent of the big London music publishing firms—or some of them, at all events. His business is to go from one seaside resort to another all the summer round, spending a week or so at each and "spotting" which ditties "go" and which do not. He knows that some among the songs whose choruses are hummed upon the sands this summer will be the favorites during the dark winter evenings. So he reports each evening to his principals in London. These latter have, of course, other "song spotters" working on similar lines in other districts, and should the reports coincide regarding any particular ballad negotiations are at once opened with the composer for the acquisition of the copyright.

No man or woman in the state will hesitate to speak well of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets after once trying them. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels, improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. For sale by all druggists.

NEXT FRIDAY

THE DATE FOR A GREAT GAME AT IDLEWILDE

On That Occasion the American-Tribune and Advocate Nines Will Contest for Supremacy.

Next Friday will be a notable day in the calendar for this month, from several points of view. In the first place on that afternoon the newspaper men and printers will hold their first annual picnic at Idlewild park, and in the second place one of the most interesting baseball games of the season will be pulled off in connection with the outing. This game will be one in which a question of intense rivalry will be finally settled, the question of the relative abilities of the baseball teams made up of employees of the American-Tribune and the Advocate.

Both offices are confident of victory, and as a result the tickets are being sold by employees of each to their friends whom they wish to see at the game to enjoy the triumph of their team.

Both teams have practiced hard and faithfully for the event, and this is particularly true of "Shorty" Gibson, of the Advocate the acknowledged champion batter and base runner of both teams. "Shorty" will absolutely appear in his specialty on the afternoon of the great game, and other stars of only a little less magnitude will shine on that occasion, including Handley Hixson the all-round athlete reporter of the American-Tribune.

Hixson at the recent Y. M. C. A. athletic games made a 23 feet ten inches in the hop, step and jump which is 'only seven feet behind the record.' This would indicate that Hixson's hop was beaten by only about a foot and a half, his step about two feet and his jump about three feet and a half.

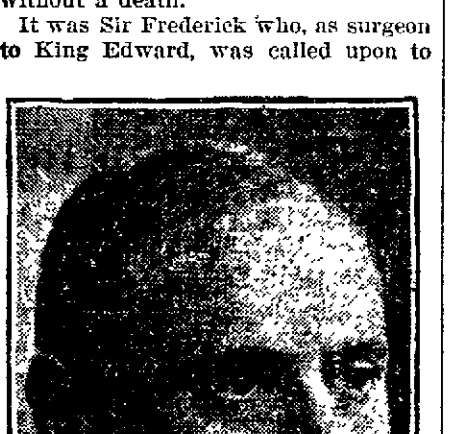

Any one may purchase tickets for this great game for any member of either team or at any of the newspaper offices.

SKILLED IN SURGERY.

Sir Frederick Treves, Who Operated on King Edward of England.

Sir Frederick Treves, the famous English surgeon who has just retired, goes into private life with the unparalleled record of having performed over a thousand operations for appendicitis without a death.

It was Sir Frederick who, as surgeon to King Edward, was called upon to perform the delicate abdominal operation on his majesty last summer just prior to the coronation.

The great surgeon, who is but fifty years old, was educated in London and won his reputation in the London hospitals. When the Boer war broke out he threw up his practice and went to South Africa as consulting surgeon of the army. On his return to the British capital he was knighted and later was appointed sergeant surgeon to the king.

A New Type of Collier.

The value of colliers to accompany fleets in time of war was thoroughly demonstrated during the Spanish war. Germany at the recent maneuvers along the Spanish coast experimented with coaling at sea, and now the British admiralty is considering plans for an entirely new type of collier. The proposed vessel is 550 feet long, 60 feet wide, with a draft of 27 feet when carrying 10,000 tons of coal. The most interesting fact about it is that the plans call for a speed of eighteen knots, or as high as that of the latest battle ships. The estimated cost of these ships is $1,250,000, which will include patent apparatus for unloading them at sea.

Railways Plant Trees.

A number of western railways have found that the growing of trees along the right of way is profitable, both for ties and snow breaks, and are setting out millions of cuttings.

Botwer's Latest

He Goes Out Into the Country to Discuss the Bee Industry and Gets Laid Up For Repairs

[Copyright, 1903 by C. B. Lewis.]

WHEN Mr. Botwer sat down to his chair the other evening he produced a newspaper from his pocket and began to peruse it with such apparent interest that Mrs. Botwer's curiosity was aroused. She waited for ten minutes, but as he made no explanations she finally asked:

"Isn't that something new you have there?"

"Yes; it's the Beekeeper's Journal," he replied as he looked up. "I got it through the mail today."

"But why should any one send it to you?"

"I don't know, but I thank him, who ever he was. It's put an idea into my head that I should never have thought of. What do you suppose the yearly profits are on a single hive of bees?"

"WHY DON'T YOU CALKULATE ON BEES HATCHIN' OUT CHICKENS?"

"Three or four dollars, perhaps, but for goodness' sake don't take up that fad! To keep bees?"

"Fad, fad! Is it a fad to make $40 clean profit in four or five months from a single hive of bees? You are always crying 'fad,' but I never had one in my life. I go in for straight business and to make money."

"But you couldn't keep bees in town, you know."

"I don't see why I couldn't. We have a back yard large enough for at least twenty hives. They would return a clear profit of $800 and take care of themselves. By John, but I'm going to investigate this matter! If I can add $800 a year to my income, why not do it?"

"Don't you see anything but profits?" protested Mrs. Botwer as she realized that she ought to have kept still. "Each hive will cost you $5 to start with. You may have seen a beehive years and years ago, but you know nothing of bees. You don't even know that they swarm once a year."

"But I can learn, can't I?" he replied.

"Perhaps, but it would be all nonsense. The bees would be an awful nuisance here, and the police would probably interfere. The honey would not sell for much unless it was clover, and where would your bees find clover in a city?"

"Let 'em go to the country for it. Right here it says that bees often fly five or six miles after material. They won't be half the nuisance that cats and dogs and parrots are. It'll be just like finding money in the road."

Mrs. Botwer spent the next half hour making figures and advancing arguments, but Mr. Botwer's enthusiasm was not to be dampened. There was $40 clean profit to a hive of bees, and twenty times that made $800. He settled it that he would take a run out into the country next day and investigate the bee question from a practical point of view, and Mrs. Botwer was obliged to be content with that. He was up bright and early and prepared for his trip and was not sanguine than ever.

"I said twenty times and $800 profit, last night," he remarked at the breakfast table, "but I won't make it forty hives and $1600. There is no use going into any fifteen cent speculation. If I had a hundred hives I would go out of all other business and attend to bees. However, I'll let you know all about it when I return. I propose to thoroughly post myself."

Mrs. Botwer had nothing to say in reply, and at 9 o'clock Mr. Botwer was off for the country and the land of bees. On the way out on a suburban car he figured it out to his satisfaction. His back yard was big enough to contain at least 700 hives. The bees wouldn't have to be fed or watered. There would be enough clover within five miles to supply them. It was no business of the police whether he kept parrots or bees. The profit on one hive was $40, on ten $400, on twenty $800, on fifty $2,000, on 500 $20,000. It would be absolutely criminal on his part not to go into the honey business and reap a fortune.

He had to walk two miles beyond the terminus before he came to a farm with a couple of beehives on a bench under a cherry tree. The farmer was at home, and Mr. Botwer lost no time in stating that he had come out to discuss the bee question.

"You ain't thinkin' of keepin' bees in town, are you?" asked Uncle Reuben.

"Yes. Why not?"

"Waal, I dunno. You look like that kind of a man, however."

"What kind?"

"Why, like a man who'd expect to raise a crop of corn in his cellar. Have you figured out the profits on your honey?"

"Forty dollars to a hive."

"Um! Why don't you calkulate on your bees hatchin' out chickens?"

"I came here to ask you a few civil questions," said Mr. Botwer, "but if you don't want to answer them I'll go on. You seem to think this bee question calls for sarcasm."

"I shouldn't wonder if it did, but I ain't time today to bother with it. There's my two hives up there, and you'd better go and learn things for yourself. You can see the bees goin' and comin' and workin', and you will know more when you git through. If you want to buy two hives I'll give you a bargain on 'em. I'm ravin' their gin' out o' bees and into onions."

Mr. Botwer sauntered up to the hives. It was a warm, sunny day, and the bees were out and doing business. The farmer watched him for a moment and then shouldered his hoe and started for the cornfield. He had reached it and hoed a score of hills and was thinking of back yards and $40 profits when a series of yells alarmed him. Looking up, he saw a human figure galloping around his dooryard and cutting all sorts of antics, while his wife began blowing the dinner horn from a kitchen window as a tocsin of alarm.

"He's gone into bees, I guess," said the farmer to himself as he started for the house, "but I kinder think he'll be disappointed in the profits."

Three hours later Mrs. Botwer was summoned to the front door by a ring, and the man she found on the steps ducked his head to her and asked:

"Have you got a husband, ma'am?"

"Yes."

"Is he short and fat and baldheaded?"

"Rather so."

"Interested in bees, ain't he? Thinks he can make a profit of $40 a hive and keep 'em in his back yard?"

"Has—has anything happened to him?" she exclaimed.

"Yes, ma'am, there has. He tipped up one of my beehives about three hours ago to look for beeswax, and the doctor has picked forty stingers out of him and is lookin' for fifty more. He'll be as big as a bar'l for the next three days, and then he'll come home. No cause to worry, ma'am. Me and the old woman will put him up and tell him that any idiot would have known better, and I guess he'll come home to drop bees and go to raisin' oysters."

"What do you think of my new novel?" said the industrious author.

ELLET'S DARING
GUNBOAT RAID

February
14-18, 1863

A FORTIETH
ANNIVERSARY
WAR STORY

[Copyright, 1903, by G. L. Kilmer.]
FEB. 14, 1863, saw the disastrous finish of one of the most daring naval adventures of the war. On that date the boy commander, Colonel Charles Rivers Ellet, lost his ship to the enemy through the treach-ery of a pilot.

Ellet was just out of his teens. On the death of his father, Colonel Charles Ellet, with whom the boy had fought in battle, he was promoted to the rank of colonel and given control of a small fleet, with the Queen of the West for flagship. The vessel was a river steamboat rigged as a ram. She was with the Federal squadron above Vicksburg.

At midwinter, 1863, the Confederates controlled the Mississippi between Vicksburg and Port Hudson, their batteries at these points keeping the Federal ships either above or below, excepting as they took the risk of running the fire of the forts and fighting for right of way in the channel with Confederate ships. If chased by powerful enemies, the Confederates would steam up Red river, where the channel was too shallow for heavy Federal ships and also guarded by Confederate batteries.
Ellet ran the Vicksburg batteries in broad daylight, ramming the Confederate steamer Vicksburg as he passed.
The Queen of the West was struck by twelve shells and set on fire, but the flames were subdued, and after an exciting cruise, during which the raiding sailors burned large quantities of Confederate stores at the docks, the expedition was steaming up Red river on Feb. 14.

Ellet received warning that the Confederates had afloat in those waters a vessel named General Webb, which could sink his ship at one shot. He decided to risk the encounter and set in the first shot himself. Fortunately,
as it proved, he met and captured a little unarmed transport steamer, the Era, and left her at anchor in charge of a guard. Proceeding up the river with the tender De Soto, a small ferryboat, in his wake, he ordered his pilot to steam slowly toward Gordon's Landing, where he was told there were three large Confederate ships with steam down. A bend in the river below the landing hid the ram from the enemy's view, and Ellet hoped to dash
in and destroy the ships at a blow.

The pilot on duty was a substitute for the regular pilot, who was sick in his berth. As soon as the nose of the ship appeared around the bend the enemy opened with four thirty-two pounder guns from on shore. Owing to the protection of the bend there need have been no difficulty in backing the Queen of the West out of range, and at the third shot Ellet ordered the pilot to back up. Instead the ship was run ahead and grounded, where every shot struck the target.

When the ship struck, the engineer reported the steam pipe cut, and the vessel was instantly filled with steam.
Without steam power she could not move. After firing thirty shots at the helpless ship the Confederates rowed out with skiffs to board her. Ellet ordered the ship's yawl lowered to save his wounded, but some of the sailors had already taken it and disappeared.
The De Soto had dropped astern of the flagship, and her yawl was out of reach.

For the protection of the main deck of the Queen of the West her sides had been barricaded with cotton bales.
These were cast overboard, and the sailors, leaping after them, used them for floats to drift with the current. Ellet reached the De Soto on a cotton bale and ordered her yawl to rescue the wounded on the De Soto. Two officers volunteered to go with the yawl.

While the yawl's party was picking up the wounded the Confederates appeared on board the luckless ship. El-let's men would have fired her to prevent her use by the enemy, but the wounded were still aboard. One of the officers who attempted to remove the wounded captain of the ship was taken prisoner, but the others escaped with the yawl to the De Soto.

Ellet and the officers of the De Soto picked up the sailors in the river and were about to start back for the Queen of the West, when a dense fog came on suddenly and the boat lost her rudders
by running into a bank. The next morning in the little captive Era, which had been left fifteen miles below. The De Soto drifted down to the Era, and after putting all hands aboard of the ex-Confederate she was lightened of her cargo, the De Soto scuttled and the pilot ordered to make the Mississippi as soon as possible. As the De Soto had drifted away from the scene of disaster Ellet noticed the Confederate ships sending up black smoke, showing they were preparing to take a hand against the daring Federal raiders.

On the trip down Red river the acting pilot betrayed his Confederate sympathies in speech, but Ellet was compelled to leave him at the wheel of the Era, as no one else on board knew the channel. Upon reaching the Mississippi he ran the boat aground, although she drew but two feet of water. Luckily the Era fell in with the Federal ironclad Indianola, which had run the Vicksburg batteries and was patrolling near the mouth of Red river to guard
Ellet against attack from the rear.

Soon after the meeting of the Era
and Indianola the Confederate ship Webb hove in sight, making for Red river to entrap Ellet. At sight of the ironclad the Webb turned about and,
being the faster vessel, got away. As Ellet wished to return and report the

COLONEL ELLET'S CREW ESCAPING ON COTTON BALES.

fate of his expedition to the fleet above Vicksburg, Captain Brown of the In-dianola took the Era under convoy until she had passed the mouth of the Red river and then prepared his vessel to fight the Webb. Meanwhile the Webb had made a landing and telegraphed news of the Indianola to the captors of the Queen of the West. The disabled ship was quickly put in order and manned with a picked crew.

Meanwhile another dispatch had brought up from Port Hudson the Confederate cotton clad Beatty, carrying 200 riflemen from the army camps, so that the Indianola had three ships to contend with instead of one. The Confederates rated their toe at true value
and made their attack in the night,
hoping to surprise and board her.
Waiting for nightfall, the Queen of the West, Webb and Beatty moved stealthily up stream with their lights out. The Indianola was discovered hugging the bank, her black figure shrouded in darkness.

In order to protect his ship from the Vicksburg guns Brown had lashed loaded coal barges to her sides, and these were still in position, making the ironclad a clumsy ship in battle. The Queen of the West opened fire at 150 yards and at the same time dashed her massive ram against a coal barge, crushing it and striking the Indianola amidships. The Queen of the West stuck fast to the ironclad, and the two drifted down the river, meeting the Webb, which struck the Indianola

head on in the bow. This collision disabled one of the engines of the Indianola, but it also shook her loose from the embrace of the Queen of the West.

The gunners of both sides made the most of their chance when the vessels were at close quarters. The Queen tried a second savage lunge, moving with the current, but Brown turned the Indianola, getting only a glancing blow, while his gunners landed two nine inch shots in the ram, which disabled two guns. Backing off, the Queen again struck the ironclad, disabling the starboard rudder. Almost immediately the Webb came down stream with the current and crashed into the bow of the Indianola, cutting through her hull so that the water poured in like a flood.

This charge carried away the prow of the Webb, but she was otherwise un-harmcd. The Queen, however, was the worse for her many collisions with the ironclad and listed so far to port that she had to be lightened to bring her wheel into the water. After the last blow from the Webb the Indianola dropped down stream, pointing for shore. Signal was given by the Queen to the men on the Beatty to board, and as the new antagonist steamed alongside a voice cried out from the Indianola, "We surrender!"

Brown gave up his sword to Colonel Brand of the Beatty, who gallantly acknowledged that the prize belonged to the Queen of the West and the Webb.

The ironclad had lost but two men in battle, so well were her works protected. Confederate shots fired at twenty and thirty yards had failed to damage her sides. The terrific cannonading of this night battle was heard thirty miles up and down the river.

Finding that their prize was going down, the Confederates attempted to tow her to a landing and save the valuable stores on board, but she sank on the Mississippi side in front of Jefferson Davis' plantation. The Queen of the West was destroyed in her next battle, and Ellet never saw his ship again.

A Rare Book.

The Duke of Devonshire possesses as an heirloom Claude Lorraine's "Book of Truth," which is said to be one of the rarest and most valuable books in Europe. It is, at any rate, worth six times as much as the famous "Ma-zarin" Bible, the most costly book in the British museum. The late duke refused $100,000 for it.

PIGEON FED BY LEO IN BED

Picturesque Incident of the Late Pontiff's Illness.

The Rome correspondent of the Berlin Lokalanzeiger wired his paper of a picturesque incident of the illness of Leo XIII. For a long time a pigeon had been in the habit of flying to the window of the pope's bedchamber daily to be fed. It grew to know its gentle benefactor and would feed from the pontiff's hand and allow him to stroke its head.

A few days ago it flew to the window. No one came to feed it, and it tapped with its beak until the pontiff ordered the casement opened. Then it flew into the room and perched on the pope's bed. Centra, the valet, was dispatched for bread crumbs, and the pope fed the bird and caressed it. He instructed Centra to see that the bird was fed after his death.

The Sock Fad.

There's been a lot of talk about
The women's latest fad,
The style of wearing socks so short
They'd barely suit a lad.
Some men are saying it's a shame
That women thus conspire
And to their use appropriate
Things meant for male attire.

But when one thinks of other things
That women look for dress
'Tis plainly seen that this new fad
Need cause no man distress.
For long ago the women donned
Hats made like those for men,
And when they waried of that fad
They started in again.

They took to shirts of mannish style,
And, though that caused surprise,
They promptly added mannish cuffs,
Man's collars and man's ties.
And when cold weather came along
Some thought they were not dressed
Unless they wore a mannish coat
As well as mannish vest.

They've broken into many sports
Man thought were all his own,
And on the field athletic girls
Their prowess oft have shown.
We've heard them at the baseball games
Join in the fans' refrains,
And we have seen them promenade
While pertly swinging canes.

So when we think of all these things
There's no excuse for shocks
Because the women have a fad
Of wearing half length socks.
Don't make a fuss about the style,
Don't say that it's a shame,
For no odds what the fair ones wear
They're charming just the same.

IDLEWILDE

STOCK COMPANY PROVES TO BE ATTRACTION

Banner Week at the Casino—"A Man Among Men"—Is The Bill For This Evening.

The first week at Idlewilde Park, during which the Chicago Stock company presented drama's instead of the vauedeville bill, which has been the feature there all season, proved conclusively that Manager Will D. Harris knew what he was doing when he made the change, and had correctly judged what the people wanted. Each night of the week broke every record for that night
in point of attendance, the large casino being full each performance.

There are yet two week's of this popular company's engagement, and it is almost certain that the same conditions will prevail.

Sunday the bill was changed from Tolstoi's "Resurrection" to a melodrama, entitled "A Man Among Men," which is well staged and well put on.

Each member of the company takes a part well suited to his or her grati-fications, and the result is a well balanced production, well suited to please those who delight in the melo-dramatic element, which is pre-eminent throughout the piece.

Norbert Dorente and Frank de Ver-ron appear as hero and villain respectively, both men appearing to please the audience by their work in these roles. Mrs. Dorente takes the part of a wild untutored, but honorable mountain woman, and has much to do with the final triumph of the hero over his sworn enemy.

George Florer as a navy recruit, and Monte W. Lewis, as an Irish policeman furnish good comedy in the play which met with hearty approval from the audience.

Josephine Fairchild, the hero's wife,
Belle Florer as the negro serving woman, Alice Vincennes as the coy sweetheart of the young navy recruit, and other members of the company are al-
good in the roles assigned them.

The specialties are furnished by Geo.
Florer, Ernest Moore and Belle Florer
the latter singing a paritone solo which showed a rich, powerful voice well modulated and pleasing to hear.

Little Opal, the winsome and pretty specialty artist, also appeared on the program, in a singing and dancing skit which she did well. Anyone who enjoys time and step, should see this little California girl dance. She is perfection and the applause which she receives is an evidence of her popularity with those who attend the casino.

The latter part of the week the Chicago Stock company will present "The Little Minister," a dramatization of Barrie's famous novel.

GAS WELLS

Two Gushers Near Martinsburg Owned
by Homer Company of Which T.

B. Fulton is Vice President.

In Saturday's paper there appeared an item regarding the coming in of two gas wells near Martinsburg, which are located on the Bebout and Rinehart farms, and it was stated they belonged to the Knox County Oil and Gas company. This latter was a mistake as the two wells, which are gushers are the property of the Homer National Gas company of which Judge J. B.

Waight of Mt. Vernon, is president, and T. B. Fulton of Newark is vice president.

Billman-Nethers.

At the residence of Mr. Frank Taylor on Andover street, at 8 o'clock Sunday morning, a very pretty wedding took place, Rev. H. N. Miller being the officiating clergyman. Mr. Virgil Billman of the Webber stove company and Miss Ida May Nethers, whose family live at Rocky Fork were the contracting parties. Miss Nethers has been living at Newark for some time. After a short time Mr. and Mrs. Billman will go to housekeeping on Wilson street.

NEW HOUSES.

I am just completing four modern dwellings on Mound street, within ten minutes walk of the square, which I can sell on terms to suit most any one. These houses are modern in every particular; to see them is to appreciate them. Fred C. Evans, No. 33 1-2

IN NEWARK

MR. CARTER MET THE GIRL WHO IS NOW HIS WIFE

Announcement is Just Made of a Wedding That Took Place in Parkersburg Last March.

The happy marriage of Mr. Fred Carter of Marysville, and Miss Minnie G.
Lander, of Marietta, O., at Parkersburg, W. Va., on March 20th, last, is one of the surprises that has just come to the knowledge of the groom's friends. Mr. Carter first met his bride, who is a fine musician and composer,
at Newark, last fall. Later his duties as traveling representative of the Bankers' Fraternal Union called him to Marietta, where she resided and their acquaintance resulted in their marriage at the above time and place.
Rev. J. H. Miller of the First M. E. church of Parkersburg, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Carter is expected to join her husband in Marysville within the next week or ten days. At present
she is in the east, attending to the publication of some of her musical compositions. She is of excellent parentage, the daughter of a widow and one of Marietta's prominent and popular young ladies.

A DINNER PARTY.

The home of Mrs. William Hanks-

merry little dinner Wednesday,
those participating were Mrs. Hanks-

Cramer and two children Ruth and Martin, Mrs. Bert Mertzner and son Roe,
Mrs. Thos. Evans and son Eugene,
Mrs. Pratt and son David, Mrs. Thos.
Jones and son Thomas. All of the babies were under two years of age and the first glimpse these babies had
of this strange old world was the kind, loving face of Mrs. Hankinson. The mothers presented Mrs. Hankinson with a nice dress and she in turn gave each baby a dainty little cup. A very enjoyable time was had by all.

ter, many came and set up in England.

SIENKIEWICZ IN ECLIPSE.

How the Polish Author Incurred the Wrath of His Countrymen.

Henry Sienkiewicz, the Polish author, who until recently was the idol of his compatriots, the entire Polish people having celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into literature, when they made him a present of a magnificent castle surrounded by a park, seems to have suffered a permanent eclipse in public esteem.

Not long ago a Warsaw paper asked Sienkiewicz what in his opinion was the best Polish drama of recent years.

HENRY SIENKIEWICZ.

The author replied that all Polish literature was worthless. This reply caused a tremendous sensation and a great revulsion of feeling against the author, and since then he has been the object of violent attacks in the Polish press.
Sienkiewicz's most famous book,
"Quo Vadis," which was translated into many languages, was published in 1896.

One Sermon in 200 Years

The only sermon preached by a pope in 200 years was that of Pius IX. in 1847, says the New York Press. A great crowd had assembled to listen to the famous Padre Ventura in Santa Andrea della Valle, Rome, but the preacher failing to appear "Flo Nono"
entered the pulpit and gave a sermon.

A Pope's Tiara.

The pope calls himself (1) head of the Catholic or universal church; (2) sole arbiter of its rights; (3) sovereign father of all the kings of the earth, says
the New York Press. From these assumptions he wears a triple crown, one as high priest, one as emperor and one as king. Pope Hormasdas was the first to place on his bonnet a crown.
Boniface VIII. added a second crown and John XXII. a third.

A Tribute to Leo XIII.

O peerless soul, white shepherd, Honorable without stain,
Three hundred millions of thy flock, who suffered in thy pain,
With other millions drawn by thy great heart's all winning love, Weep o'er thy bier and pray for thee to him who rules above.

O fearless heart that met the king of terrors with a smile,
Stern foe of wrong, brave friend of right,
Stanch hero free from guile.
Be to us wanderers through the night a brightly guiding star;
Help our tired feet to follow thee, though weakly and afar.

A mourning world in tears for thee grieves
for its crushing loss
And of thy patience begs a share to bear
its heavy cross.
Yet triumph pulses through our grief because this world of strife
Is higher, purer, nobler made by thy exalted life.

New strength thou gavest to the weak;
grieved quailed before thy name;
Thy justice, truth and charity have galed
thee deathless fame;
Mankind, by thee uplifted, takes of faith
and hope new lease.
And graves for thee a well earned crown,
rest and eternal peace.
